Considerations for International Human Rights Work and the Rights of Women

The National Committee for Responsive Philanthropy (NCRP) investigated the “connections between conservative foundation grantmaking and the politically influential evangelical movement.” They used data from 1999 to 2002 collected in a prior project tracking “dedicated support of private foundations” which they found “has helped foster the success of a wide variety of conservative causes” in the United States. In 2005 NCRP published Funding the Culture Wars: Philanthropy, Church and State. They said their research “clearly shows how strategic grantmaking is being used to promote “traditional family values” and stances on issues such as abortion, same-sex marriage, stem cell research, school prayer, and public displays of the Ten Commandments.”

NCRP completed a sample of 37 foundations and found a total of 3,162 grants totaling $168 million from 1999 to 2002. This was “distributed to approximately 700 organizations within the predetermined definition of evangelical.” NCRP noted that the Foundation Center “estimates that nearly $500 million in foundation grants were given to religious organizations in 2002 alone.”

NCRP had difficulty identifying how much of the funding was spent in terms of operating support as opposed to programmatic support, apparently due to a lack of clarity in reports made public or filed with the federal government. Of the funding expenditures that could be identified, NCRP found that in “contrast to much of the social service grantmaking done by the federal government and mainline foundations, a minuscule 7 percent of the total went to program support, while a full 51 percent went to operating support.”

Information from Funding the Culture Wars: Philanthropy, Church and State follows below:

Networks

Here we provide information on four organizations, Human Life International, Apostles of Jesus, World Congress of Families, and Global Leadership Summit to illustrate international networks. Human Life International works with Apostles of Jesus and is a partner organization of the World Congress of Families.

Human Life International

We have chosen Human Life International as a leading example of the range of outreach activities of a religious mission involved in policy issues around the world.

Human Life International is a Roman Catholic pro-life mission based in the United States that defends “life from the moment of conception until natural death for every human being.” It describes its mission as organizing “effective opposition to the culture of death around the world. With affiliates and associates in over 100 countries, Human Life International is the largest international pro-life organization in the world.” The primary activity of HLI is stopping abortion through public education and passing laws restricting or banning the procedure.

World Congress of Families

The World Congress of Families (WCF) describes itself as:

“an international network of pro-family organizations, scholars, leaders and people of goodwill from more than 60 countries that seek to restore the natural family as the fundamental social unit and the ‘seedbed’ of civil society (as found in the UN Universal Declaration of Human Rights, 1948).

The WCF was founded in 1997 by Allan Carlson and is a project of The Howard Center for Family, Religion & Society in Rockford, Illinois (www.profam.org). To date, there have been five World Congresses of Families – Prague (1997), Geneva (1999), Mexico City (2004) and Warsaw, Poland (2007). The fifth World Congress of Families was held in Amsterdam, Netherlands, August 10-12, 2009

(www.worldcongress.nl and www.worldcongress.org).”

“The World Congress of Families supports the right to life, from conception to natural death...”

The next World Congress of Families is scheduled for Madrid, Spain (25-27 May 2012). Most of the organizations involved in planning the World Congress of Families are based in the United States.

The “World Congress of Families Leadership Petition” is included here to illustrate the range of individuals who can be mobilized around a single issue campaign. The signatories include a number of very influential evangelical and Christian Right leaders. In addition, there are signers from several countries outside the U.S., including Australia, Belgium, Canada, Ireland, Mexico, Nigeria, Poland, Romania, Russia, and Spain. The language of the petition illustrates the use of human rights rhetoric based on United Nations documents and a frame that suggests colonialism, "Western style language," and faceless international "entities" are attempting to manipulate national sovereignty and popular will.

World Congress of Families Leadership Petition

In Support of the "No" Campaign
Kenyans Opposed to the Pro-Abortion Constitution

PRESS RELEASE: For Immediate Release: 16 July 2010, Rockford, Illinois

WEBSITES: www.profam.org, www.worldcongress.org, www.worldcongress.pl or

Whereas citizens of Kenya will be voting on a new constitution in an August 4 referendum

Whereas said Constitution includes language which overturns present Kenyan law prohibiting abortion except to save the mother's life

Whereas Section 26 of the Constitution allows abortion when, in the "opinion of a trained health professional there is need for emergency treatment, or the life or health of the mother is in danger, or if permitted by any other written law"

Whereas the Kenyan Constitution fails to define "health" and keeping in mind the World Health Organization (WHO) definition: "Health is a state of complete physical, mental and social well-being and not merely the absence of disease or infirmity"

Whereas any health professional, including nurses and midwives, can decide if a woman's health is at risk

Whereas Western style language legalizing abortion was inserted into the Kenyan constitution by nine voting members of the Committee of Experts, which included three non-Kenyans, and was rejected by Kenyan Parliamentarians in the draft process

Whereas numerous UN entities have pressured Kenya to legalize abortion and section 59 of the constitution establishes the independent Kenya National Human Rights & Equality Commission to "act as the principal organ of the State in ensuring compliance with obligations under treaties and conventions relating to human rights"

Whereas abortion does more to jeopardize a mother's health (including making her more susceptible to breast cancer) than does carrying a child to term

Whereas that the real threat to maternal health in Kenya comes from unassisted childbirth and lack of access to emergency obstetric care,

Whereas abortion can result in blood loss and infection and inflict harm to women physically, emotionally and psychologically

Whereas Ireland has a strict life of the mother exception for abortion and has the world's lowest maternal mortality rate

Whereas traditional Kenyan values recognize the dignity of all members of the family, including the unborn child, and polls have demonstrated that a majority of Kenyans oppose legalizing abortion

Whereas mothers in Kenya deserve support and assistance during pregnancy and childbirth

Therefore, the undersigned pro-family and pro-life leaders urge Kenyans to consider the consequences of enacting a constitution which would, in reality, allow unlimited access to abortion and result in the destruction of countless unborn children and injury to women

We declare our solidarity with those Kenyans who are standing up for the most vulnerable among us – the unborn child and his or her mother – and support the "No" campaign.
